“When people feel valued at work, they're more satisfied, more creative, and more likely to take risks to contribute in positive ways.”

--Isaac Prilleltensky, PhD

Engagement Model Breakdown

Belonging: Fostering a sense of belonging helps employees feel both seen and validated. Promoting an inclusive workplace advances collaboration, mental health, creative problem solving, and overall engagement.

Wellbeing: Physical, mental, and emotionally healthy employees are more likely to remain focused and motivated, encouraging supportive collaborations and greater capacity for challenging obstacles and problem solving.

Leadership: Credibility and honest communication drives loyalty throughout a workplace culture. Transparent leaders who invest in their employees see higher levels of innovation and intelligent risk taking resulting in successful outcomes.

Equity: When employees feel opportunities, promotions, and recognition are awarded based on merit and not favoritism, it translates to a more engaged workforce because employees feel their contributions will be recognized regardless of background.

Purpose: Employees who feel their goals and values align with those of their workplace are more likely to go the extra mile and show initiative. Purpose is one of the clearest indicators of employee retention.

Empowerment: Empowerment gives employees the authority, resources, and support they need to make decisions. This fosters a culture of self-learning and ownership, reducing micromanagement and preparing future leadership.
